

University for a Night 2010

Wednesday, May 5 in New York City

Join Synergos and distinguished leaders from around the world for a special night of discussion, collaboration, and networking.

Started in 1997, University for a Night offers people from business, government, civil society, and philanthropy a space to learn from each other, to share experiences, and to make connections that will help address global poverty and other critical social issues.

We will honor two people whose many accomplishments represent what the event is all about. The 2010 recipients of the David Rockefeller Bridging Leadership Awards will be:

- Sir Richard Branson, Founder of Virgin Unite
- Zainab Salbi, Founder of Women for Women International.

University for a Night 2010

The name "Synergos" comes from the Greek root meaning "working together." We address global poverty and social injustice by working collaboratively to change the systems that keep people in poverty. Bringing together influential people and institutions in government, business and civil society with poor and marginalized communities, we help every part of society work together to create sustainable systems change.

Since its founding in 1986, Synergos has supported innovative global partnerships in more than 30 countries. Your contribution to University for Night helps support Synergos' programs around the world.

Clockwise from top left: Education program in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, supported by Instituto Rukha, a Synergos partner in that country; discussion among members of the Global Philanthropists Circle from the United States, France and Russia; Synergos Senior Fellows from the Philippines and Pakistan; Synergos Arab World Social Innovators learning event in Jordan.
